

Roger Clarke, Vicar (Parish Priest)

"Born on Wirral, but with Welsh roots, I was ordained in 1983 (I know, I don't look that old!). I came to Hale Barns in October 2010 after spending eleven years as Rector of West Kirby on Wirral. I suppose that in churchy terms I would describe myself as "Liberal, Evangelical and Catholic" -, it reflects my own spiritual journey and it works for me! I am fascinated by art, architecture, music and poetry and like rather a lot of clergy confess, when pushed, to an abiding interest in railways. I think I am at my happiest enjoying fish and chips on the Pier at Beaumaris in Anglesey or enjoying a pint in "The Bull" at Walsingham in Norfolk. (isn't it interesting how food and drink are a part of it.....)"

Clair Jaquiss, Assistant Priest

"I'm what's known as a Minister in Secular Employment. I was ordained priest in 2009, having been a Reader for many years: not so much a late vocation as a slow response! Kevin, my husband, is a lawyer and a Methodist Local Preacher. I work as a radio producer for the BBC in religious programmes, usually spend two days a week in parish ministry, and began work at All Saints in March 2011. We have three grown up daughters: Mary, Lizzie and Cathy. I enjoy theatre, music and food. You might occasionally see me out jogging. I'm happy to wave but often don't have enough breath to speak."
